

Monday 9/25	Title _____ Author _____ The great thing about a book is that it can make the reader laugh, cry, get mad, scared, feel worried—then relieved and joyful...and that's just in the first 50 pages! Browse through the book you just read and see if you can find a scene that made you feel each of the emotions. Write them down. Set up a new page. Date the page.
Tuesday 9/26	Title _____ Author _____ BREAK NIGHT!!! SPEND QUALITY TIME YOUR FAMILY!!!!
Wednesday 9/27	Title _____ Author _____ Can you retell a part of your story ten events? Give it a try! Create a cool timeline that highlights the ten most important happenings in your reading tonight. Which ones have to be included? Which ones won't make the cut? If you like, add cool pictures to make your timeline extra snazzy. Set up a new page. Date the page.
Thursday 9/28	Title _____ Author _____ Pretend a character in your book has written a "Dear Blabby" letter to a newspaper columnist asking for advice with a BIG problem. What would it be? Put yourself in his or her shoes and write it. Now put yourself in Blabby's shoes and craft a thoughtful response to help that character come up with a solid solution. Set up a new page. Date the page.
Friday 9/29	Title _____ Author _____ Keep Reading!!!! BREAK NIGHT!!!!
Weekend 9/30 – 10/1	Title _____ Author _____ Starting with "Once upon a time," retell a part of your book in the form of a teeny-weeny fairy tale. Does it end "happily ever after"? Set up a new page. Date the page.